Quantitative Screens

Performance: The fund has finished in the Real Estate category's top three quartiles in 8 of the 10 years it's been in existence.

Management: The fund's management has been in place for 18.26 years.

× Style: The fund has landed in its primary style box — Mid-Cap Blend — 53.33 % of the time over the past three years.

Morningstar Investment Management LLC Analysis

We have placed Invesco Real Estate on watch due to poor relative performance. It has significantly underperformed peers over the last 12 months, including losing much more than its average category peer for the year to date, which has dragged down longer-term trailing returns. While the fund is on watch we will be assessing the team's ability to deliver more competitive results.

We have placed Western Asset Core Bond on watch due to persistent troubles with performance and risk management. The fund has experienced some periods of large losses, with 2022's nearly 17% loss looming large. The fund's Morningstar Risk rating is now High, and while some funds are able to deliver high returns for the bumpy ride, this fund has not been able to do so for quite some time. We are placing this fund on watch as we assess its place on the approved list.
